ou publish a statement of a difficulty which ook place between J. J. Monahan and my self, at Oakville, in which you say that I rescued Birchfield, a prisoner in charge of Monahan, and that I beat him (Monahan) with a stick while Mr. Norman held him. This is untrue, which I am prepared to show by the evidence of more than a half dozen ritnesses, who were present and saw the entire difficulty from beginning to end. The facts are these: In February last I issued a warrant for the arrest of Birchfield, a white man living in the town of Oakville, on the charge of carrying concealed weapons. This warrant was placed in the hands of J. J. Monahan, the Constable of the district, to be by him executed. Monahan did execute the warrant by arresting Birchfield, and for some reason permitted him to escape, as he himself said. Birebfield had gotten away and gone to Arkansas. Then he (Monahan) reurned the warrant and asked that it might be dismissed, his object being to get his cost, and the warrant was dismissed by me som time afterward, and can now be found in th Criminal Court of this county. On the 5th of this month, while in Oakville, I learned this old charge, and was intending to take him to Memphis. I walked over to where he had his prisoner in a buggy, and, placing my hands on the reins of his horse, asked him if he would not turn Birchfield over to me, add ing that I would take charge of him until case. With an oath Monahan replied that and that he would put him (the prisoner) in jail in Memphis; and said, further, that if did not take my hand off the reins of his horse he would shoot me, and suiting the sc tion to the word he commenced to draw his pistol, when I seized his hand, and, to prevent him from shooting me, I slapped him in the face. Mr. Norman, who was present pistol from him, and that was all that oc dent of Oakville, and can now be found busiy employed in his blacksmith-shop, and no loubt holds himself accountable to the law at all times. I am not a bulldozer, Messri Editors, as you were wont to characteriz me.
